

“Things I have done at Benedictine have taught me how to interact and deal with people of different racial backgrounds and social environments.”

Marcus Pass came to Benedictine University hoping to learn new things and meet new people. He has achieved both. “I felt that by coming to Benedictine, I would learn things I never would have known had I not come here,” he said. “I now have friends of all races and ethnicities. I am learning how to be a well-rounded person.

“The things I have done at Benedictine have taught me how to interact and deal with people of different racial backgrounds and social environments,” Pass added. “My patience and tolerance have reached new heights.”

Pass expanded his circle of friends and gained new experiences through his participation in a number of student organizations and activities such as the Eye of the Eagle student television show where he serves as a sports anchor, the African-American Student Union and The Candor student newspaper.

Marcus Pass – carrying the light that was passed on to him, and sharing it with others so that they may pass it on to future generations.
