The design problem was to create three folly and transition spaces of increasing enclosure and complexity. The solution used the concepts of dignity as manifested in mammoth Easter Island statues and the concept of an urban park tree canopy.