Architectural Folly
Second semester, First year 2007
Four week project.

A kit of parts was used to construct an elegant space that was inspired by the process of a building and its construction over time. The path allows for structured movement along an asymmetrical axis set by the construction elements.